

ANDRETTI AUTOSPORT LMP3 TEAM ANNOUNCES ROLEX 24 AT DAYTONA DRIVER LINEUP AND 2022 IMSA WEATHERTECH SPORTSCAR CHAMPIONSHIP SEASON

Co-Driving the No. 36 with Jarett Andretti at Daytona will be Josh Burdon, Gabby Chaves and Rasmus Lindh

INDIANAPOLIS (December, 2021) — A familiar face returns for next season and two familiar names join the Andretti Autosport LMP3 team at the Rolex 24 at Daytona on January 28-29, 2022.

The team announced today that driver Jarett Andretti will pilot the No. 36 Gallant Ligier JS P 320 in the WeatherTech SportsCar Championship for the storied 24 hour endurance race alongside returning Andretti Autosport LMP3 driver Josh Burdon. Joining Andretti and Burdon as co-drivers for the Daytona endurance race will be 20XX driver Gabby Chaves and 20XX driver Ramus Lindh.

Additionally, Andretti Autosport also announced that returning co-driver of the No. 36, Australian Josh Burdon, is on board for the full 2022 IMSA WeatherTech SportsCar Championship season alongside Andretti. Said Burdon, "I am excited to continue racing with Andretti Autosport alongside Jarett for the 2022 IMSA season. I am motivated by the strength of our program and our sole focus is to fight for the championship win."

Swedish born Lindh, the 2021 12 Hours of Sebring LMP3 polesitter, joins the team for the Rolex 24 Hours at Daytona with fresh optimism, stating "I am really looking forward to run with Andretti for the 24 Hours of Daytona and I cannot wait for the race to start."

2014 IndyLights Champion Chaves echoes his teammates excitement, adding "I cannot say how excited I am to be joining Andretti Autosport for the Rolex 24 Hours at Daytona! I have been following their LMP3 progress in IMSA closely this year and truly believe they have what it takes to win at Daytona. When I began speaking with Jarett and the team, I immediately jumped at the opportunity to be part of it. They have put together an amazing driver, engineering, and mechanic lineup to come out swinging in 2022."

With his first season of IMSA SportsCar Championship racing under his belt, third-generation driver and co-founder of Andretti Motorsports, Jarett Andretti, is looking forward to the intense level of endurance competition that the Rolex 24 at Daytona brings "I'm looking forward to the experience. I think we have a great driver line up and the team is ready. This is a historic competition and we are all excited to be a part of it," said Andretti.

The Andretti Autosport No. 36 Ligier JS P320 continues in partnership with Gallant, Window World, Mi Windows and Doors, Schaeffer's Oil, Superior Auto, Indy Truck and Auto Repair and Unite Health Share Ministries/ WeShare.

The Andretti Autosport LMP3 team will begin the 2022 season of competition with qualification for the Rolex 24 Hours of Daytona at the IMSA Roar Before Daytona 24 January 22-23. Qualifying at the Roar will be broadcast live on NBC Sports Gold Trackpass.
